ACCESSIBLE TUITION PROGRAM

Meeting the Needs of Every Family

As a community, we are burdened by misconceptions about tuition and the process of adjusting tuitions. The system we currently use is a fixed tuition system. This provides a stable financial base which, coupled with grants, gifts, and fundraising, comprises our operating budget. We have created the Accessible Tuition Program (ATP) with its process of adjusting tuition in order to accommodate those families who could not afford to pay the published tuition rate. A common misconception is that this program is the same as financial aid or tuition assistance. The reality is that we do not take from those that 'can' and give to those that 'cannot'. In fact, by refusing to meet the needs of those who are eligible for adjusted tuitions, we would place an even greater burden on the 'can' families by removing from our revenues the amounts that the 'cannots' contribute through reduced tuition and grants.

The money that we pay to the school in tuition should be thought of in the same light as the time and effort we contribute. The gift they represent is our participation in the quality of our children's (and our own) cultural experience—a gift that enhances the promise of their individual futures. The education each of our children receives at the VWS is comprised of experiences shared with every other child in the school. In this way, each parent's tuition contributes not only to their own child's education, but to that of all the other children as well.

Healthy economic policies must meet and balance our financial realities. These can only be found through the difficult and soul-searching struggles of people working together to build a sustainable community – one which is both socially as well as financially responsible.

The ATP Process

The review process does not begin with new students until we have notice of acceptance from the class teacher. When an application is received, the information is reviewed and the family may be contacted by phone to gain further clarity. The application, which includes among other items, income and expense information, as well as the previous year's tax return, is then reviewed.

In the majority of cases it is possible to make objective comparison to what other families with similar income levels and life situations are paying and then consider extenuating circumstances. Given such exceptions, most families that go through the process are asked to pay an adjusted tuition that represents a specific percentile 'window' of their income. A family's history with the school and their commitment to Waldorf education is also considered in establishing a financial relationship that is healthy for both the family and the school.

By adjudicating all of the applications together, the entire ATP budget can be worked with and kept in mind thereby achieving greater consistency in offering adjustments. Afterwards, there may be follow-up discussions or meetings with families.

Once an adjusted tuition has been assessed, the family is notified with a letter containing a Tuition Agreement, which when signed and returned to the school office, formally accepts the adjusted tuition level. If the assessed adjusted tuition is unworkable for the family, further conversation takes place to determine if there is new information about the family's situation that would warrant a further adjustment.
