How does Waldorf education nurture the development of children once they are ready to begin formal academic learning in first grade and beyond?

In this adults-only presentation, we will discuss how the Waldorf curriculum and the uniquely evolving approach to teaching accompany the child's unfolding consciousness from the imaginative/picture experience of Grade One, through the transition from a mythological perception, to a dawning realism during the middle grade school years.

Phil Fertey has been a class teacher for the past nine years and, in that capacity, has taught all of the elementary grades. Phil is currently the Grade Two class teacher and the parent of a Vancouver Waldorf School Grade Ten student. Phil has a MBA from York University and twelve years experience in advertising as a writer.
